Section 1:
Name, Incorporation and Objectives
The European Society of Criminology (ESC) is a scientific institution founded under the Literary and Scientific Institutions Act 1854, a statute of the parliament of the United Kingdom. It has the following objectives:

a) To bring together, in one multi-disciplinary society and on a European level, persons actively engaged in research, teaching and/or practice in the field of criminology;
b) To foster criminological scholarship, research, education and training within academic institutions;
c) To encourage scholarly, scientific and practical exchange and cooperation among those engaged in criminology, particularly at the European and international levels;
d) To serve as a forum for the dissemination of criminological knowledge at the European level.

The term criminology, as used in this Constitution, refers to all scholarly, scientific and professional knowledge concerning the explanation, prevention, control and treatment of crime and delinquency, offenders and victims, including the measurement and detection of crime, legislation and the practice of criminal law, and law enforcement, judicial, and correctional systems.

The official seat of the ESC shall be permanently located at the premises of the Institute of Criminology, University of Cambridge, England.
Section 2:
Membership
Active Members shall be engaged in the discipline of criminology, as defined in section 1. Student Members can be studying full time in appropriate disciplines in colleges and universities, or in training programmes in the area of criminal justice.
Membership shall be dependant upon review by the Executive Board. In order for a Member to exercise the rights of membership, his or her annual dues, as defined in section 7, must be paid up.
Members who have seriously violated their obligations towards the ESC can be excluded by the Executive Board, but shall have the possibility to appeal, within one month, to the General Assembly.

Section 3:
The General Assembly
The General Assembly must be held whenever one fifth of the Members require it to be convened, and regularly during the Annual Meeting of the ESC. It shall be convened by the Executive Board.
The date of the meeting of the General Assembly is to be communicated to the Members at least one month in advance, with an indication of the agenda. By a majority of two thirds of the Members present, the General Assembly may also decide on subjects not announced in the agenda.
The General Assembly shall elect the Executive Board. The Executive Board will publish, at least three months before the date of the General Assembly, a call for nominations which will be open to all members.
The General Assembly may revoke the appointment of any officer who has seriously violated his obligations towards the ESC.
The General Assembly may make and amend by-laws of the ESC by simple majority vote of Members present at the Assembly.
The General Assembly shall decide by the majority of those taking part in the vote. At the request of at least five members, votes and elections are to be held by secret ballot. The General Assembly may decide to submit certain decisions or elections to a referendum by postal ballot among all Members. The procedure of voting by ballot shall be laid down in by-laws.

Section 4:
The Executive Board
The Executive Board shall administer all those affairs of the organization which are not left, by law or this Constitution, to the General Assembly or any other body. The Executive Board is composed of elected and appointed members.
The elected members of the Executive Board are the following:
a. President
b. President-Elect
c. Past-President
d. Two at-large Board members
The appointed members of the Executive Board are the following:
(I) The Executive Secretary
(II) The Newsletter Editor
(III) The Editor-in-Chief of the European Journal of Criminology
(IV) The Organizer of the next Annual Meeting
(V) The Organizer of the last Annual Meeting
Elected members are voting members of the Executive Board and shall be actively involved in research and/or teaching in Europe. Appointed members are non-voting members of the Executive Board. Nevertheless, the Newsletter Editor can vote on issues related to the Newsletter; the Editor-in-Chief of the European Journal of Criminology can vote on issues related to the European Journal of Criminology; and the Organizers of the Annual Meetings can vote on issues related to the Annual Meetings. Members of the Executive Board shall normally not occupy at the same time more than one of functions (a) to (d) and (I) to (V) listed above.
The Executive Board can invite, occasionally or permanently, further non-voting members to participate in its meetings.
The president is elected for a term of three business years: the first year as President-Elect, the second year as President, and the third year as Past-President. The President, the President-Elect, and the Past-President shall not come from the same country. A former President of the ESC is not eligible for re-election as President but is eligible for any other elected or appointed position on the Executive Board.
The two-at large Board members are elected for a term of two business years. There must be an interval of two years between any two terms served by them on the Executive Board. The Executive Secretary, the Newsletter Editor, and the Editor-in-Chief of the European Journal of Criminology are appointed by the Executive Board for a term of five business years, reconfirmable annually by the Executive Board. The Executive Board shall meet at least once in each business year. It decides by vote of the majority of those members entitled to vote who are present at the meeting, or alternatively by postal ballot. No member shall take part in the discussion or vote where a conflict of interest may arise between his or her personal interests and those of the ESC.

The Executive Board takes office on the day following the General Assembly that takes place during the Annual Meeting. The business year ends on the day of the General Assembly that takes place during the following Annual Meeting. The financial report covers a full fiscal year.

Section 5: Committees
The Executive Board can approve the creation of Committees. The term existence of all such committees shall cease at the end of the business year.

The Executive Board shall appoint the members of a Program Committee for the Annual Meeting, with the exception of the Program Chair, who shall be elected by the General Assembly.

Section 6: Annual Meeting
The Executive Board shall decide on the site of each Annual Meeting and on the general program. Due consideration shall be given to adequate rotation among the various countries and regions of Europe. Members and non-members can submit proposals of presentation papers for consideration by the Program Committee, which will take into account the quality of the proposals and the constraints of time and meeting space. The Program Committee can invite distinguished speakers at the expense of the ESC.

As a general rule, English shall be the working language of ESC meetings. The Program Committee can admit panel sessions and presentations in other languages.

The registration fee shall be determined by the Program Chair. Reduced fees can be offered to Members of the ESC and to student participants.

The Executive Board will make appropriate financial arrangements with the local organizers.

Section 7: Membership dues, budget and financial obligations
The General Assembly shall determine the membership dues, decide upon the budget and ratify the accounts that have been presented by the Executive Board and approved by the auditors.

Neither the Members, nor the officers, nor any other person appointed as members of the Executive Board of the ESC shall be individually or collectively liable for any of the debts or other legal liabilities of the ESC, beyond the amounts payable by them as membership dues.

The Executive Board shall adopt guidelines concerning the payment of expenses by the Executive Secretary.

Section 8: Periodicals and Editorial Committee
In the form of a Newsletter, the Executive Board shall inform the Members about significant events and developments.

The ESC is publishing the European Journal of Criminology (EJC), a refereed journal. A by-law shall determine the composition and powers of the Editorial Committee, as well as the society's policies in this respect. The financial arrangements between the ESC, the Editors of the EJC and the Publisher will be determined by a special agreement.

Section 9: Administration
A list of all Members of the ESC and of all of its officers and other persons appointed to the Executive Board from time to time, shall be maintained and open to public inspection at the seat of the ESC.
Two members will be elected as auditors by the General Assembly for an unique period of two years. They will be in charge of checking the books and accounts of the ESC and report to the General Assembly on their observations.

The Executive Secretary shall prepare the annual accounts of the ESC and submit them to the auditors within six months of the end of each calendar year. Upon receipt of the auditors' report, the Executive Secretary shall ensure that copies of the accounts and of the report are deposited at the seat of the ESC, where they may be examined by any Member upon request during reasonable office hours. The Executive Secretary shall subsequently submit the annual accounts, together with the auditors' report, for ratification by the next regular General Assembly of the ESC.

The academic activities of the ESC shall be administered from the offices of the Executive Secretary, wherever these may be located from time to time.

The Executive Secretary will receive an honorarium as adopted by the Executive Board.

The duties and responsibilities of the Executive Secretary will be determined by the guidelines adopted by the Executive Board.

Section 10: Property and Legal Proceedings

The money, financial assets and all other movable property of the ESC, wherever located, shall be collectively vested in the members of the Executive Board from time to time. Any immovable property of the ESC shall be vested either in trustees, who are to be appointed by the General Assembly for that purpose, or as may be otherwise required by the law of the jurisdiction in which such immovable property is located.

The President of the ESC from time to time is hereby nominated as the person in whose name any and all legal proceedings may be brought against or by the ESC in any jurisdiction.

Any judgment or award obtained against the President acting in that capacity shall be enforceable only against the property of the ESC and the proceeds of any judgment or award obtained by the President acting in that capacity shall be the property of the ESC.

Section 11: Amendments to the Constitution

Whenever it is sought either (i) to abridge, extend or otherwise amend the objectives of the ESC, as set out in Section 1 of this Constitution, or (ii) to amalgamate the ESC with or merge the ESC into any other institution or organisation, then the following requirements must be complied with:

a. The Executive Board shall schedule a Special Assembly of Members to consider the proposition.

b. The Executive Board shall send a written notice of the Special Assembly to all Members, together with a copy of the proposition, at least one month before the date of the Special Assembly.

c. If the proposition is approved by at least 60 percent of the Members present at the Special Assembly, the Executive Board shall schedule a second Special Assembly to take place one month after the first Special Assembly.

d. If the proposition is approved by at least 60 percent of the Members present at the second Special Assembly, it may thereafter be carried into effect.

e. If at least 40 percent of the Members consider that a proposition, which has been duly approved, is calculated to prove injurious to the ESC, they may apply to the United Kingdom's Secretary of State for Trade and Industry in writing within three months of the second Special Assembly, asking the Secretary of State to investigate the matter.

f. If the Secretary of State, upon investigation, finds that the proposition is indeed calculated to prove injurious to the ESC, then that proposition shall not be carried into effect, but may be resubmitted to Special Assemblies at any time thereafter.

Any other provision of this Constitution may be amended by a vote of two-thirds of the Members present at any General Assembly, but no amendment may be inconsistent with the requirements of the Literary and Scientific Institutions Act 1854.

Section 12: Dissolution of the ESC

The ESC may be dissolved at any General Assembly by a vote of at least 60 percent of all of the Members and such dissolution shall take effect immediately or at a specified time thereafter. The Members then present shall either wind up the affairs of the ESC and specify the institution to which its net assets, after satisfaction of all debts and liabilities, shall be given, or mandate the Executive Board to complete these tasks. In neither case shall the net assets of the ESC be distributed among the Members or given to any of them.
If the Members, or the members of the Executive Board as the case may be, are unable to agree upon the institution to which the net assets shall be given, or if any Member is dissatisfied with the manner in which the affairs of the ESC are proposed to be wound up, she or another Member or officer may apply to the County Court with jurisdictional competence at the seat of the ESC, or, if no County Court should have jurisdiction, to the Chancery Division of the High Court of Justice of England and Wales, for an order resolving the matter.

Section 13:
Adoption of the Constitution
The present Constitution has been approved, as a general project, by the meeting of the Founding Members held at the Ministry of Justice of the Kingdom of the Netherlands on 7 and 8 April 2000, and ratified in its present form by an exchange of letters, which are kept in the files of the ESC. It has been amended at the General Assemblies held at Amsterdam on 27 August 2004 and at Krak-ów on 2 September 2005.

European Society of Criminology: Working Groups
The Society has established five working groups:

- Thematic working group on juvenile justice (Chair: Josine Junger-Tas)
- Effectiveness of criminal justice systems (Chair: Chris Lewis)
- Quantitative criminology (Chair: Andromachi Tseloni)
- ESC European University Curriculum Working Group (Chair: Gorazd Meško)
- European Governance of Public Safety Network (Chair: Gordon Hughes)
- European Postgraduate Researchers Working Group (Chair: Jenny Johnstone)

Thematic working group on juvenile justice (Chair: Josine Junger-Tas)

The first meeting of this working group took place at the Conference of the European Society of Criminology in Helsinki in August, 2003. The last meeting was taking place at the ESC conference in Crakow.
Working group participants include 24 experts from Western Europe, 2 from Eastern Europe, and 2 from North America.
We have decided to follow a two step procedure, the first step being to collect papers from national experts in as many as possible European countries, including possibly also Canadian and American experts. Those reports can be found on the website. A collection of papers will be published with an American publishing house.
The final trend report, with recommendations for reform in juvenile justice, will be written by a smaller group of experts in specific sub-fields of the system, and will then be addressed to member states and the EU directorate Justice and Home Affairs.
National Juvenile justice experts are still invited to present their paper on the situation in their own country in the coming month, answering if possible the following four essential questions:

1. What are the main policies in your country in terms of the prevention of crime, the treatment of young offenders, and the respect of children’s and young people’s procedural and individual rights?
2. Have there been in the last 15–20 years any specific trends in these policies?
3. What is known about the practical outcomes of the present policies, both concerning the effective reduction of delinquency and the respect of children’s rights?
4. Does your country have policies as well as evidence based programmes to make prevention and interventions more effective and individual rights better respected?

Juvenile justice experts willing to make a contribution to the working group, please contact Jungertas@xs4all.nl.

Effectiveness of criminal justice systems (Chair: Chris Lewis)

The ESC Board set up, in August 2003, a Working Group on the Effectiveness of Criminal Justice Policy (WGE), under the chair of Chris Lewis, Senior Research Fellow and Visiting Professor at the Institute of Criminal Justice Studies at Portsmouth University, UK.

The objective of this WGE is to produce reports for wider discussion at ESC Annual Conferences, taking into account the following points:

- Output measures used to monitor effectiveness
- Structures in different European States to measure effectiveness
- Collections of good criminal justice practice or guidelines to improve CJS effectiveness in different member states
- The developing policy of the EU Directorate General of Justice and Home Affairs to anticipate crime trends and causes and assess the effectiveness of crime prevention measures

The objective is to develop effectiveness studies in the context of both EU and Research developments to 2007. This could involve a bid for EU funding for expert group meetings or for dedicated research. In the first instance the WG will be electronically based, whose main aim will be to produce reports for ESC Conferences.

The usefulness of this working group will depend on members of the ESC contributing to it. Those interested in making a contribution to the WGE or in keeping in touch with developments should contact Chris Lewis at: chris.lewis@port.ac.uk.

ESC European University Curriculum Working Group (Chair: Gorazd Meško)

The purpose of the working group is to foster high quality European university programmes in criminology as well as innovative teaching in this area. The working group has organized a number of sessions for the ESC conference in Amsterdam and workshops are also planned for the future conferences. It is also working on conducting a census of European higher education programmes in criminology.

Due to a greater transferability of knowledge, mobility and exchange of academicians in the field of criminology plans of the working group for the period 2006-2009 are learning about programmes in criminology, criminal justice, crime prevention and community safety, victimology, etc.; obtaining research grants for creation of a European Higher Education Directory consisting under and post-graduate programmes in the mentioned areas, institutions and professors (teachers) of criminology.

Everyone who is willing to participate in developing the quality of teaching and contributing to the development of standards of criminological programmes in Europe is very welcome.

A round table on the "Bologna Challenges" will be organised this year at the Tuebingen ESC conference. Do not hesitate to contact me at: gorazd.mesko@fpv.uni-mb.si
Quantitative criminology (Chair: Andromachi Tseloni)

ESC members with research interests in quantitative criminology are invited to join the European Quantitative Criminology (EQC) working group.

Apart from defining a pool of European criminologists with quantitative orientation and promoting communication among them, the EQC working group's shape and objectives are open for discussion. Possible functions include organizing quantitative criminology or research methods panel sessions at ESC conferences or holding one-day EQC workshops, establishing cross-national quantitative criminology research ties to aid in competing for European Commission funds, offering a student award for the best quantitative paper submitted to the ESC meetings, and drafting guidelines for quantitative research methods courses, etc.

If you would like to join, please send your name, position, affiliation, and (optional) quantitative research specialization/expertise to: atseloni@uom.gr (SUBJECT=EQC). Your views and suggestions for short and longer-term functions of the EQC group are greatly welcome. Please include the group's abbreviation, 'EQC', in the subject field of your e-mail message.

European Governance of Public Safety Network (Chair: Gordon Hughes)

Origins and Progress to date
This Network was established at the second conference of the European Society of Criminology (ESC) in Toledo following a special panel of researchers examining crime control and safety strategies in European localities. It was at this panel that the group of researchers discussed the origins of the network and the conceptual arguments behind its broad focus on the ‘governance’ (rather than simply government) of ‘public safety’ (as opposed to the relatively narrow concern with crime control) specifically in ‘Europe’ (as opposed to generically).

The Network organised an inaugural meeting and colloquium at the Open University in February 2002 on cultures of safety in Europe, sponsored by the journal Social and Legal Studies. This inaugural meeting established the broad aim and objectives of the Network and the initial organisation of the Network. Since then the Network has organised panels at the third ESC conference in Helsinki and at the fourth ESC Conference in Amsterdam.

Members of the Network have also produced a special edition of the Community Safety Journal (vol 3, no.1, 2004) on the politics of prevention and safety in Europe, and the journal Theoretical Criminology has agreed to publish a special edition on public safety and comparative criminology in Europe, based on the participants’ work to be discussed at the forthcoming Amsterdam conference.

Aim of the Network
‘To facilitate comparative research into current developments in the governance of public safety occurring in European localities’.

The aim of the Network expresses the belief in the distinctiveness of European criminology but also recognises the provisional character of this belief and the need for systematic comparative research to corroborate or revise this proposition.

Objectives
A number of specific objectives have been established in support of this aim:

- To examine the models of social explanation employed within policies for public safety
- To question the transferability of these policies across different social contexts
- To explore the (un)intended consequences of these policies
- To consider the ethics and democratic accountability of these policies
- To evaluate alternative criteria for evaluating these policies

Membership of the Network
The constitution of the Network remains quite informal and will require a formal set of terms and conditions and constitution in line with the ESC’s existing ‘working groups’ (to be negotiated). Gordon Hughes is the chair and co-ordinator of the Network. It is proposed that the Network be potentially open to all members of the ESC. Its core membership to date includes the following colleagues:

- Adam Crawford (UK)
- Adam Edwards (UK)
- Peter Goris (Belgium)
- Tim Hope (UK)
- Lynn Hancock (UK)
- Patrick Hebberecht (Belgium)
- Gordon Hughes (UK)
- Susanne Karstedt (Germany/UK)
- Mike Maguire (Wales)
- Jacques de Maillard (France)
- Goraszd Mesko (Slovenia)
- Gian Guido Nobili (Italy)
- Amadeu Recasens (Spain)

European Postgraduate Researchers Working Group (European Society of Criminology Conference, Tübingen, Germany 2006) (Chair: Jenny Johnstone)

The initial meeting of the European Postgraduate Researchers Group will take place at the 2006 European Society of Criminology (ESC) Conference in Tübingen, Germany http://www.eurocrim2006.org/. The Working Group is supported by the ESC, the Centre for Criminological Research, University of Sheffield, and the Scottish Centre for Crime and Justice Research, University of Glasgow. The Working Group is primarily aimed at doctoral and post-doctoral researchers in the early stages of their career (up to 5 years research experience). The aim of the Working Group is to provide a forum to discuss, develop and collaborate on new and innovative criminal justice research with other early stage researchers and lead/senior academics on a European level. Among many issues that we discuss, the Group provides the opportunity for members to present their research, and provides information on publishing work, pursuing academic/research careers, applying for research funding and working collaboratively. It is an interdisciplinary group, with members from various departments from across Europe who are involved in criminological research, for example law and sociological studies. The initial meeting will take place between 14:00-18:00 on Saturday August 26th. The meeting will concentrate upon two elements. The first will be poster presentations given by researchers themselves. The second will be a roundtable discussion on publishing journal articles and books led by senior academics. The remainder of the meeting will allow us to discuss the future of the Group and will focus of the following:

- Methods of disseminating information on the research projects undertaken - and the methodologies employed - by doctoral and post-doctoral researchers across Europe who are in the early stages of their careers.
- Expanding membership of the Working Group.
- Establishing a communication network between members (e-mail distribution list, website carrying members' details, a regular newsletter)
- Gathering support for pan-European collaborations, leading to a conference/colloquium and future funding bids.

Submissions should be sent to Lisa Burns electronically or by post to:

The tour includes a visit to the castle museum that hosts important archeological findings and replicas, such as a complete ancient Egyptian burial chamber, an early classical "Tübinger Waffenläufer" or the paleolithic "Vogelherdfiguren" made from ivory.

Have a nice evening in Tübingen’s most famous beer-garden with a view on the river Neckar and a cold homemade beer. This is a nice alternative option for all those not participating in the Gala Dinner. The restaurant and the beer garden tend to be crowded, especially on days with nice weather and warm temperatures. So in case you would like to join in: Try either early or very late at night. In between you may not find a seat there. However: By walking up the Neckarsteige Street, just opposite the Neckarmüller, you will surely find other suitable restaurants for either drinking or/and eating out. Please consult our Restaurant Guide.

Don’t miss…

Hohentübingen Castle
In 1078 the castle of the Counts of Tübingen was mentioned for the first time. The today's castle which hosts numerous institutes and collections of the university, derives mainly from the 16th century. Its most beautiful decoration is the Renaissance portal built around 1606 in the style of a Roman triumphal arch, whose centre shows the emblem of the Duchy of Württemberg. From the castle the visitor has views to the city, as well as to the Neckar River and Ammer River valleys and the extended region up to the horizon of the Swabian Alb in the south.

A Visit to Hohentübingen Castle (Museum) is part of the Sightseeing Programme.

Neckar Waterfront
Walking along the island in the river Neckar or taking a boat trip in a famous "Stoehrkahn" – the boat exclusive to Tübingen navigated by a long wooden pole, similar to the punting boats in Cambridge, UK – offers a scenic view of the picturesque Neckar waterfront with the famous Hölderlin Tower.

Boats can be hired near the Neckar Bridge.

Collegiate Church (Stiftskirche)
In the context of the foundation of the university in 1477 the former parish church which had been mentioned for the first time in 1191 was transformed into a collegiate church. During that time – from 1470 to approximately 1490 – the today's church emerged in late Gothical style where the former Romanic building had been. The top of the tower was added only at the end of the 16th century.

As one of the most important churches in Württemberg the collegiate church received an excellent decor: One of the nicest Gothic rod screens in South Germany, an altar of Dürer's pupil Hans Schäufelein, an resplendently decorated baptistery, a masterfully created lectern and impressive choir stalls.
Hölderlin Tower (Hölderlinturm)
The poet Friedrich Hölderlin (born in 1770) lived here from 1807 until his death in 1843. He was mentally ill and the family of carpenter Zimmer accommodated him in this building. Today the Hölderlin Tower is a literary memorial place and museum.

Modern Art Gallery (Kunsthalle)
The internationally renowned Kunsthalle offers an ample range of exhibitions of the Classical Modern Era under the direction of Götz Adriani. Works by Degas, Renoir, Picasso, Cézanne and Rousseau were the focus of the past years. Contemporary artists were presented as well, e.g. Joseph Beuys, Anselm Kiefer, Andy Warhol, Bruce Nauman, Joseph Kosuth or Duane Hanson. Please ask in the Tourist Information Office about the present special exhibition: “Franz Gerth Retrospective” (Contemporaneous famous Swiss Artist and Photographer).

The Kunsthalle is open on 25, 26, 27 and 29 August. In general: Tuesday - Sunday, 10:00 to 16:00 hours. Closed on Mondays.

Short History of the City and the University of Tübingen

Along the abridged version of the history of the city and the university, as provided by the city administration, we can note the following steps of development:

The name Tübingen indicates, like all other localities with "-ingen" that the settlement had been founded about one and a half thousand years ago by Alemanic tribes. But Tübingen was mentioned for the first time only in 1078, during the investiture dispute when King Heinrich IV besieged the Tübingen castle, the "castrum Alemannorum, quod Twingia vocatur", after his procession to Canossa.

The builders of this castle – the Counts of Nagoldgau – named themselves "Counts of Tübingen" who achieved the laureateship of Palatine Counts in the middle of the 12th century, representatives of the Duke of Swabia. Under their governance Tübingen flourished for the first time. The village became a town: In 1191, besides the priest, merchants were mentioned; around 1204 the town had gallows – a criteria of the high jurisdiction; finally around 1231 Tübingen was called "civitas" which indicates a location with municipal law and civil liberty. A few years later the city wall was documented. The "Tübinger Pfennig" (Tübingen's Penny), a coin molded in the town, measurements and weights from Tübingen were brought into wide circulation.

The Dukes of Württemberg

The downfall of the House of Staufen meant a loss of political power for the Palatine Counts of Tübingen, and marked the start of a steep recession so that the Palatine counts were forced to sell their town of Tübingen to the Count of Württemberg in 1342. From that date on Tübingen's history is embedded in the history of Württemberg.

For centuries Tübingen was the county's second largest town after Stuttgart, measured by its population and economical power and became the second residence town and capital due to the formation of the Duchy of Württemberg in 1495. In connection with the so-called "Remstalaufstand" (Uprising of the people in the Rems Valley) Tübingen's political role was clear when its "respectability" reclaimed important basic and human rights from Duke Ulrich von Württemberg through the so-called "Tübinger Vertrag" (Treaty of Tübingen) in 1514.

With this "Magna Carta of Württemberg" the local politicians were able to enforce a right of co-determination to a large extent, to constrain the power of Duke Ulrich von Württemberg and to ensure important privileges for themselves. This treaty affected the development of Württemberg's constitution for centuries. It still applied during the 19th century according to Tübingen's poet Ludwig Uhland for whom it was the "good, old law".

Foundation of the University

The most momentous and meaningful event in the history of Tübingen was the foundation of the university by Count Eberhard im Bart in 1477; at that time Tübingen had about 3000 inhabitants.

Even though there were already universities in Basel, Freiburg, Heidelberg and Ingolstadt the "Hohe Schule" in Tübingen achieved high esteem due to sound economic resources and eminent teachers. The four classical faculties of theology, law, medicine and philosophy had outstanding professors such as the theologians Biel and Summenhard, the jurists Uranius-Prenninger and Naukler-Vergenhans, the humanists Reuchlin and Bebel, the subsequent reformer Melanchthon or the famous mathematician and astronomer Johannes Stöffler.

The physical expansion of the town took place hand in hand with the growth of the university: the new building of the gothic collegiate church as the festival room of the university was accomplished, buildings for lecturing, accommodations for professors, students' hostels like the Burse, and even a new bridge over the river Neckar were built. The old town that exists today dates back to this period.
Reformation

After the banishment of Duke Ulrich von Württemberg, Tübingen and the Duchy Württemberg as a whole were under Austrian governance from 1520 until 1534. After his return Ulrich von Württemberg initiated the reformation with specific attention to the university; Philipp Melanchthon presented an advisory opinion for its reorganisation. Those of the professors who did not comply had to retire early. New professors, Lutheran orientated, were appointed, among them the medic and botanist Leonhard Fuchs after whom the "Fuchsia" is named.

Protestant Collegiate

In order to assure a quick schooling of protestant ministers after the reformation Duke Ulrich von Württemberg founded the Protestant Collegiate in 1536, which had also an impact on the fame of the town.

Not only the intellectual and theological elite of the country were formed at the collegiate, its history is part of German and even European intellectual history. Famous theologians and philosophers like Jakob Andréa, Johannes Albrecht Bengel, Ferdinand Christian Baur, Friedrich Theodor Vischer and David Friedrich Strauss came from this collegiate, but also numerous men who showed eminent achievements in other fields like Johannes Kepler, Eduard Möricke and Wilhelm Hauff.

The time from 1788 until 1795 was a highlight in its history when Hegel, Hölderlin and Schelling studied together and even temporarily shared a room to live together. Only a couple of decades after the reformation Tübingen acquired high esteem as a stronghold of protestant orthodoxy. The chancellor of the university and theologian Jakob Andréa was the initiator and author of the "Konkordienformel" (doctrine based on Luther's reformation) to which the discordant Lutheran princes agreed on in 1577.

Collegium Illustre

Beyond doubt, another highlight of Tübingen is the Collegium Illustre, inaugurated in 1594, when the intellectually generative town was in a period of economical growth. Collegium Illustre was one of the first academies for knights in the German-speaking area where modern subjects like politics, natural sciences, modern foreign languages, horseback riding, swordplay and dance were taught according to the aristocratic ideal and complementary to the humanistic educational programme.

Until its temporary closure in 1628 due to the Thirty Years War, the Collegium Illustre had been the favorite academy of the protestant aristocracy at home and abroad with an enormous attraction up to Scandinavia, Poland, Hungary and the countries under Habsburg rule.

The Thirty Year War and its Consequences

The Thirty Year War (1618-1648) was a catastrophe. Both the town and university were suffering hunger and plague in equal measure, marauding and murdering soldiers decimated the population; citizens of the town and the university lost their fortunes; the silver treasures of the university were melted down, and the libraries were abducted.

During the final stage of the war Tübingen became the headquarters of the French. It took some time until the town and the university recovered from the devastation. The economic misery was accompanied by an intellectual narrowing. The formerly flourishing university (as distinguished in 1623 by Professor Wilhelm Schickard’s invention in the first mechanical calculator of the world) fell to the level of a moderate educational institution.

The professorships were held by individual families; free positions were commonly given to sons and sons-in-law. It is amazing that despite nepotism and despite the provincial situation influenced by confessionalism and absolutism of small state scholars with nationwide prominence like Rudolf Jakob Camerarius, the discoverer of the venereal nature of plants or Johann Georg Gmelin, explorer of Siberia, came to work at the university.
In the middle of the 18th century Duke Karl Eugen tried to help the university. But when the majority of Tübingen's professors defied his ideas for reforms, Karl Eugen founded the "Hohe Karlsschule" in Stuttgart, which Emperor Joseph awarded the status of university in 1781.

In Tübingen the number of students dropped to under 200, which meant an economical downfall for the town. Not only the professors made their livings from the students, but also innkeepers, landlords, eateries, bookbinders, dressmakers, butchers, shoemakers, scribes of registers and so forth. Perhaps only the death of the Duke and thus the abrogation of the competitor from Stuttgart in 1794 prevented Tübingen from the worst.

Town and University during the 19th Century

The political changes at the beginning of the 19th century gave the town new energy. In 1817 the faculty of political science was established, and headed by Friedrich List – the first in Germany. In the same year the catholic theological faculty was added; in 1863 the first German natural science faculty was founded at Tübingen's university.

The specialization in old subjects and the institutionalization of new disciplines was the most obvious in the field of medicine. From the second half of the century on, Tübingen got over the provincial standards to which the faculty of medicine had adhered over the past centuries. Physiological chemistry had its start within Germany in Tübingen; the botanist Hugo Mohl founded the modern cytology.

Together with the nascency of new disciplines, the emancipation of individual subjects and the stronger orientation towards practical clinical medicine evoked construction and the development of a new clinical quarter in the northeast of town. Tübingen owes its fame of being the "town of poets and thinkers", as "sedes musorum" – the domicil of muses -, as "Neckar-Athens" to this rehabilitation at the end of the 18th century and beginning of the 19th century. Ludwig Uhland – poet, scholar and politician, Wilhelm Hauff, Gustav Schwab, Justinus Kerner, Eduard Möricke became well-known beyond the borders of Württemberg. In his publishing house Johann Friedrich Cotta from Tübingen edited works of German classics.

Town and university were changing. The gates from the Middle Ages were demolished. The new buildings of the university were followed by an expansion of the town: in 1845 in the so-called "Ammervorstadt" – outskirts of Ammer – at Wilhelmstraße the New Assembly Hall was inaugurated, in 1861 Tübingen was connected to the railroad system. In 1900 the number of students totalled 1.000 compared to 15.000 inhabitants; in 1925 the number totalled 2.500 compared to 20.000 citizens. However, the expansion of town and the increase of the number of inhabitants in comparison with other towns was restrained due to the fact that industrial settlements were completely neglected.

After World War II

After World War II Tübingen was the capital of Württemberg-Hohenzollern until the foundation of Baden-Württemberg in 1952. The parliament sat at the former Bebenhausen monastery.

The university still defines the image of the town. The space required for the university, as well as for new institutions like Max-Planck-Institut and the Deutsches Institut für Fernstudien (German Institute for Distance Learning), made it necessary to move away from the Neckar and Ammer valleys uphill to "Morgenstelle", "Wanne" and "Waldhausen".

The past 25 years have been characterized by an explosive growth in the university. In 1992, with 26,000 of students compared to about 84,000 citizens, Tübingen had the highest "density of students" in Germany. The bon mot "Tübingen doesn't have a university, Tübingen is a university." characterizes Tübingen's past to its present. However, in spite of the large increase in people and all the modernisation and adaptation to modern times, due to the gentle restoration of the Old Town, Tübingen has been able to preserve a lot of its atmosphere and charm.

It is quite true that Tübingen lives from the complementary interaction of the old town, the university and the civil community, that Tübingen lives between professors and wine growers, and gains its peculiar attraction and its unsurpassable "genius loci". Still, today Tübingen is a provincial and cosmopolitan city, a university village and an "Athens on the Neckar". Tübingen is the small big city, "the place for which one is vainlessly in search on earth".

7th ANNUAL CONFERENCE OF THE EUROPEAN SOCIETY OF CRIMINOLOGY

CRIME, CRIME PREVENTION AND COMMUNITIES IN EUROPE

September 26–29, 2007, BOLOGNA, Italy
The 2007 Annual Conference of the European Society of Criminology will be jointly organized by the University of Bologna, Department of Education Sciences (Faculty of Vocational Training Sciences) and the Service for the development of Safety Policies and Local Police of the Regione Emilia-Romagna.

Both these institutions have been point of reference for many sociologists and criminologists in Italy and have given a relevant contribution to the development of criminological thought and to the cooperation with other scholars in Europe.

Following the tradition of the European Society Conferences of the past years, the Bologna Conference 2007 will embraces most of the issues about crime, crime prevention, deviance and criminal policies which are currently at the centre of criminological thought in Europe, with a particular focus on the topic of local/global crime phenomena, of the role of local communities in crime prevention reaction and strategies, of the overlapping and coordination of European institutions, national states, regional and local governments in the governance of crime. In few words: in the changes and crossing of boundaries both of crime phenomena and of prevention and control strategies in post-modern societies.

The central aims of the conference are the following. Firstly, to enhance exchanges and cooperation among scholars in Europe (and also scholars coming from outside Europe), between academics and other institutions (local governments, police, etc.) involved in crime matters and in the development of crime control and prevention. Secondly, we expect that the conference will give a contribution to the general development of criminological thought - especially in Southern Europe - in order to single out better ways to understand - and to react to - crime phenomena in their post modern, local/global fashion and in their relationship with the social dynamic of unsafety, fear of crime and community mobilization and regeneration.

Bologna is world famous. Even its nicknames have become well known symbols. Bologna “the Learned” (la dotta) refers to its famous University, “Alma Mater Studiorum” founded in 1088, the first in the world.

Bologna is a city that down through the ages has always respected the pragmatic, free spirit that fired the first scholars of the “Studio”. The town welcomed students from all over Europe, playing the difficult role of mater nobelium studiorum, the mother of noble studies, and providing a social context where absolute freedom was enjoyed. The original school of law was soon joined by the schools of medicine, then philosophy, arithmetic, logic, rhetoric and grammar.

Bologna played host to the greatest names in European culture: the poets Dante and Petrarch, Thomas Becket, Archbishop of Canterbury, Copernicus, Erasmus of Rotterdam, Paracelsus and Torquato Tasso.

Bologna is “the Learned” also on account of its musical traditions. Padre Martini, Mozart, Wagner and many others helped make the city a major focus on the world music scene. Bologna “la dotta” was also the birthplace of people like Giorgio Morandi, Galvani, Righi and Guglielmo Marconi.
