Scheduled: Sep 23 2022, 08:15-9:30, Room: Room (Aula) 18 Law School / Facultad de Derecho

Session Type: Pre-Arranged Panel

Session Chair: Olivia Smith

This panel brings together findings from Project Bluestone (Operation Soteria), a research partnership with the police in England and Wales designed to improve their response to rape and other serious sexual offences. In the first year of the project, rich data has been gathered from five police forces through a series of ‘deep dives’ in each area. The panel will draw upon this data to examine how to manage the complexities of RASSO investigations in terms of first response, officer wellbeing, and the overlap with domestic abuse. The panel will complement the findings and discussion from another proposed session titled ‘Procedural Justice in the Policing of Rape and Serious Sexual Offences’. The study is funded by the Home Office and MOPAC (the Mayor’s Office for Policing and Crime).
