BEYOND PUNITIVENESS: CRIME AND CRIME CONTROL IN EUROPE IN A COMPARATIVE PERSPECTIVE

In the past decade, criminological literature has been abound with sparkling funeral oratories about sociological theories of crime and causation as well as the criminal policy guided by it. "Punitive turn" was the word of the day, at least in most criminological publications on the topic. It seemed generally accepted that incarceration rates would rise and crime control would become harsher as the irreversible process of the politization of crime control and criminal justice gradually took hold in every European country. However as the dust settled, it became increasingly clear that this was not the case. While the pessimistic predictions might have proved to be right in certain countries, they do not appear to be valid in others. The conference will focus on what factors influence the trends in crime control and actual policymaking mechanisms in various countries. Moreover wide varieties of other criminological topics and recent research findings will be analysed and discussed during the four days of the Conference.

The host institutes, 378 years old Eötvös Loránd University (ELTE) one of the leading universities in Hungary, the 346 years old Faculty of Law is the highest prestigious law school in the country, the 30 years old Hungarian Society of Criminology is a vivid community of the academics and professionals in the field of criminology and criminal justice.

The Host city Budapest is one of the world's most romantic and entertaining capitals. The city is divided into two parts by the meandering Danube, iconically spanned by several wonderful bridges. The conference will take place in the historical downtown of the city. Although traditional Hungarian food is world-famous, there is hardly any cuisine in the world which is not on offer in Budapest restaurants. Hungarian wines (like Tokaji or Bull's blood) can also be enjoyed in Budapest's several wine bars, clubs and pubs. With its colorful mix of different lifestyles, rich, lively culture and buzzing nightlife, Budapest is more than worth to visiting.

WE ARE GLAD TO WELCOME YOU IN BUDAPEST!

One of the capital's most romantic and only lakeside terrace awaits Eurocrim2013 participants with a taste for great Hungarian cuisine.

Restaurant Hemingway is famous for its special atmosphere. It is a large restaurant in the 11th district of Budapest in a fairly busy living area which is also packed with students of nearby universities thus very lively. However Hemingway with its location in the park is rather in a calm environment, with a nice little lake in front where social events on the terrace become really magical. Guests will definitely enjoy their food while sitting on the deck by the lake, enjoy a little September sunshine in the orangery, and try some of the finest Hungarian wines selected by the sommelier, while relaxing to the sounds of smooth jazz.

Don't let this opportunity wasted to get together with colleagues and friends on the last conference evening!

What is Pub Crawl?

The word 'Pub crawl' originated from the 19th century in the UK. It refers to tours which focus on the social aspect of meeting new friends and being introduced to new bars in a strange city. In Budapest there are several interesting bars and clubs that a tourist sometimes could never find as they are so local and out of sight.

Visiting these places you'll have a slight show on "what is going on" in Budapest at night in real, so on this tour we are going to skip those "touristy" places.

Crawl includes:

- ▶ min. 3 bars/local venues visited in Downtown (5th – 6th district)
- ▶ club concert
- ▶ beverages (limited) in each place
- ▶ history, stories of the places

The psychologist Albert Eglash (1977) has been widely recognized as the originator of the term "restorative justice," yet his substantive contributions to that movement and to the psychology of criminal reform are sometimes overlooked. In this talk, I will review some of Eglash's more prescient ideas for criminal justice reform, in particular, his proposal to introduce the successful mutual-help model from groups like Alcoholics Anonymous into the criminal justice sphere. I will situate these proposals in the context of contemporary trends in justice practices in the UK and Ireland, and especially lessons from community-based restorative justice projects in Belfast, Northern Ireland.

MEETING OF NATIONAL SOCIETIES OF CRIMINOLOGY

Chair: Pascal Décarpes and Éva Inzelt

B-6 Room

▶ 236

The intention to organize such a meeting is to look beyond national and comparative studies since we consider that there is an epistemological lack in research that would enable cultural confrontations. The objectives of this meeting are diverse and complementary. Inspired by anthropological and ethnological studies, and apart from political studies, we are convinced that criminology can also contribute to a broader knowledge on what are the respective socio-cultural motivation and attitudes towards crime, punishment and prevention. Our aim is absolutely not to nationalize and divide research theory and methods, but rather to understand and assess cultural backgrounds that influence local studies and to explore new ways of reflecting on national penal phenomena.

THE FIDUCIA PROJECT

A-Aula Magna

Chair: Zsolt Boda

- ▶ 254
This panel presents the key research findings and activities of the FIDUCIA (Full title: New European Crimes and Trust-Based Policy) project, funded by the FP7 programme of the European Commission.

FIDUCIA is meant to shed light on a number of distinctively “new European” criminal behaviours that have emerged in the last decade as a consequence of technology developments and the increased mobility of populations across Europe. These are: human trafficking, trafficking of goods, crime of migrants, and cybercrimes. To put it more simply, its aim is to see whether new ways can be found of regulating the sorts of crime that are becoming more common as we move towards a more integrated Europe, with improved communication and large movements of citizens and non-citizens between member states.

This panel is designed to present the central idea behind the FIDUCIA project: public trust in justice is important for social regulation and a “trust-based” policy model should be employed in relation to emerging forms of criminality, as opposed to a “deterrence-based” policy model.

Presenters in the panel: Stefano Maffei, Mike Hough, Jon Jackson, Elena Vaccari, Demelsa Benito Sánchez, Susanna Knickmeier, Zsolt Boda, Paolo Campana

Under the guidance of the Chair the discussion will contain a mixture of short presentations and interactive sessions. The aim is to involve all attendees in the debate and to alternate the roles of speaker, listener and debater.

We present the "ESC Working Group on Criminal Law-Making Policy". This Group aims to build a scientific debate forum in which cross-national experiences and information are gathered to study how criminal legislative decisions are taken and how they could be improved. It is our conviction that, despite elected legislator's legitimacy to create criminal laws, this does not exclude the possibility of monitoring and improving the processes used in such task.

Edited by Sophie Body-Gendrot, Mike Hough, Klara Kerezi, René Levy, Sonja Snacken, this new book brings together twenty eight contributors and five editors intending to illustrate various aspects of a truly comparative and interdisciplinary European criminology. Handbook elaborates on theoretically grounded comparisons. The themes which have been selected reveal European perspectives, emphasizing both unifying factors and differentiations across countries where they are most obvious in terms of institutional, legal, social and intellectual dimensions. It introduces nuances in the multiple cultures of control, divergences in orientations and responses. It compares and contrasts definitions, concepts, laws and practices. We attempt to illustrate the idea of a European way of tackling crime, punishment, security, restorative justice, etc.

POLICING WORKING GROUP: ROUND TABLE:
EXPERIMENTAL CRIMINOLOGY AND EVIDENCE-BASED POLICING:
THE FUTURE OF DEMOCRATICALLY RESPONSIVE POLICING IN THE GLOBAL SOUTH?

Chair: Nick Fyfe, University of Dundee, School of the Environment,

Dundee, United Kingdom

A-0A/4 Room

► 355

A selection of panelists including leading figures from the evidence-based policing movement and its critics will take part in an informal debate on the transferability of experimental criminology and evidence-based policing policies and practices to developing and transitional countries. Following the debate, the Chair will open up the floor to members of the audience who will be invited to respond to the panellists, ask questions and reflect on the ways that European police researchers might seek to generate positive impact through their work and contribute to just and socially effective policing outcomes abroad. Both the panel and the round-table will be publicised through the ESC Working Group on Policing and may also serve as the basis for a special issue of the European Journal of Policing Studies.

Featured Participants: Andy Aitchison (University of Edinburgh), Jarrett Blaustein (Aberystwyth University), Graham Ellison (Queens University Belfast), Jonathan Kearney (Queens University Belfast)

▶ 611
'Punishment in Europe' brings together contributions from twelve countries from West as well as East Europe. The countries are The Netherlands, Sweden, England and Wales, Ireland, France, Germany, Russia, Poland, Bulgaria, Italy, Spain and Greece. All chapters provide a critical anatomy of penal systems in the respective countries. Although the editors make no attempt to produce a 'comparative' study of penal systems in Europe, they identify some variables and general normative values which may explain differences and similarities between the national contexts under scrutiny.

THE ROUTLEDGE HANDBOOK ON WHITE-COLLAR AND CORPORATE CRIME IN EUROPE

Chair: Judith Van Erp

A-221 Room

▶ 630

Research in white-collar and corporate crime has been dominated by Anglo-American scholars writing about these types of crimes in the United States, the United Kingdom and Australia. Continental Europe has always been lagging a bit behind in this regard. White-collar and corporate crime is, nevertheless, also a well-elaborated topic of scholarship in continental Europe and all European countries have witnessed serious cases of such crimes. The aim of the Routledge Handbook on White-Collar and Corporate Crime in Europe is to present this knowledge and these typically European experiences to an English speaking audience and to include the specificities of white-collar and corporate crime in Europe, such as economic crimes and regulation in Eastern European countries in transition and in Southern European countries, opportunities for fraud in the context of the European Union, testing Anglo-American theories with European data, et cetera. Authors and all others interested are kindly invited to join the round table session and to discuss the content and the progress of the handbook.

HANDBOOK ON POLICING IN CENTRAL AND EASTERN EUROPE, GORAZD MESKO (EDITOR)(SPRINGER, 2013) AND GLOBAL POLICING BY BEN BOWLING AND JAMES SHEPTYCKI (SAGE, 2012)

Chair: Gorazd Mesko

A-0A/4 Room

- ▶ 644
Policing in Central and Eastern Europe has changed greatly since the fall of the Berlin Wall. Some Central and Eastern European countries are constituent Members of the European Union, while others have been trying to harmonize with the EU and international requirements for a more democratic policing and developments in accordance with Western European and international policing standards, especially in regard to issues of legality and legitimacy.

Global Policing presents an integrative interdisciplinary theory which focuses on the subculture of transnational policing in shaping the world system. It examines the transnational practices of police agencies, making use of analytical distinctions between 'high' and 'low' policing, 'public' and 'private' security. It provides a descriptive analysis of transnational policing on the ground, the terms of its effectiveness, legitimacy and accountability and the trajectory of its development.

(EDS: TOM DAEMS, DIRK VAN ZYL SMIT & SONJA SNACKEN)

B-5 Room

- ▶ 689
Is there something distinctive about penology in Europe? Do Europeans think about punishment and penal policy in a different way to people in other parts of the globe? If so, why is this the case and how does it work in practice? In this special session the editors will present the book European Penology? (Hart, 2013) and discuss how the book aims to address some major and pressing issues that have been emerging in recent years in the interdisciplinary field of 'European penology', that is, a space where legal scholarship, criminology, sociology and political science meet - or should meet - in order to make sense of punishment in Europe.

Presenters: Tom Daems (Ghent University), Dirk van Zyl Smit (University of Nottingham) and Sonja Snacken (Vrije Universiteit Brussel)

Discussants: Susanne Karstedt (University of Leeds) and Michael Tonry (University of Minnesota)

THE FUTURE OF THE EUROPEAN CRIMINOLOGY CURRICULUM WORKING GROUP - A ROUND TABLE

A-603 Room

Chair: Gorazd Mesko, University of Maribor, Slovenia,
Faculty of Criminal Justice and Security, Ljubljana, Slovenia

▶ 750

The European Criminology Curriculum Working Group has been active for decade. Sharing knowledge and information on teaching criminology and criminology curricula is essential for the development of undergraduate and postgraduate teaching in criminology, criminal justice and related fields in Europe. First, the past work of the WG will be briefly presented. Second, a chair of the WG will facilitate a discussion on a possible future development of the EUCWG. We are thinking about a new perspective - doctoral teaching and research working group with the purpose of sharing best graduate teaching and research practices among criminology scholars in Europe and creating a network of doctoral schools of criminology in Europe.

You are kindly invited to contribute to the workshop with your ideas. Active participation and new members in the WG are welcome.
